

FORMAL REQUEST FOR FILE CORRECTION

Canada Disability Benefit ($200) Deduction

ADSB-AFCL-003 v1.0 • Released June 2026

WHEN TO USE THIS FORM

Use this letter when AISH or ADAP has deducted the $200 Canada Disability Benefit (CDB) amount from your monthly benefit, but that deduction does not match the CDB status you reported. Common situations: your CDB application was denied and the $200 was taken anyway; your application is still pending with no decision and the deduction was applied; or you reported your status to AISH and it was not recorded before the deduction was made. This letter is the right tool when the deduction is a recording or processing error. It cannot, on its own, reverse a $200 deduction the program applies as policy regardless of whether you actually receive the federal benefit.

BEFORE YOU SEND THIS

The government's front door for this is the Canada Disability Benefit and Disability Tax Credit application status form at alberta.ca/aish-apply-for-federal-disability-supports. Report your CDB status there first. Use this letter as the escalation when the $200 was deducted despite a status you already reported.

HOW TO USE THIS FORM

1. Fill in the date, your file number, and the benefit month affected at the top.
2. Fill in THE FACTS section on page 2 with your specific dates and what occurred.
3. Sign and date page 3.
4. Email or mail the completed letter to your AISH or ADAP worker (contact list on page 4).
5. Keep a saved copy and the sent-email confirmation as proof of submission.

RE: Canada Disability Benefit $200 Deduction — File Correction Request

Date of Letter

AISH / ADAP File No.

Benefit Month Affected

Dear AISH worker,

I am writing to request immediate correction of my file and of the $200 Canada Disability Benefit deduction applied to my monthly benefit for the period above. I have reported my CDB application status to the AISH program, and the $200 deduction does not reflect that reported status or the federal benefit I actually receive. The facts of my situation are set out on page 2, with my reporting obligation, request for resolution, and signature on page 3.

THE FACTS

The information below reflects what I have already reported to the AISH program regarding my Canada Disability Benefit:

Date I applied for the CDB (or the DTC step before it)

Current status of my CDB application

e.g. denied / no decision yet / approved for less than $200 / unable to apply

Date I reported this status to AISH

How I reported it

government status form / email / phone

CDB amount I actually receive each month (enter 0 if none)

Benefit month(s) the $200 was deducted

What I was told (for example, on a call to the Contact Centre)

Maximum 1,000 characters

Any other relevant facts (additional context, prior occurrences, etc.)

Maximum 1,000 characters

REPORTING OBLIGATIONS AND WORKER DUTIES

Per the Government of Alberta (alberta.ca/aish-report-a-change), my responsibility is to report changes in my situation “as soon as possible,” including “income you, or your spouse or partner get.” The AISH Policy Manual's Maintaining Eligibility section confirms clients are required to advise their AISH worker of changes “as soon as they occur.” I have reported the status of my Canada Disability Benefit application, on the date listed on page 2.

The $200 deduction applied to my benefit represents Canada Disability Benefit income. For the period stated on page 2, I do not receive that federal income in the amount deducted, because my application was denied, is still pending, or I am unable to receive it. A deduction for income I do not receive does not reflect my reported and documented circumstances.

The AISH Policy Manual's Client Reporting section sets out the corresponding worker responsibility for verifying benefit accuracy and recording what clients report. The incorrect deduction reflects a status I submitted that was not accurately recorded in my file. Correcting that record is the administrative responsibility identified in that section.

I AM REQUESTING

- 1. Immediate correction of my file to reflect the Canada Disability Benefit application status I reported for the period stated on page 2.
- 2. Reversal of the $200 CDB deduction for the affected benefit month(s) where it does not reflect federal benefit income I actually receive, and processing of my benefit in the correct amount.
- 3. Written confirmation, within 10 business days, of the corrected file status and the date my next benefit will be received.
- 4. I reserve my right to appeal this decision within 30 days per alberta.ca/appeal-aish-decision, should it not be resolved.

Thank you for your urgent attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

The North Zone email address has changed

Use this address now

ALSS.NorthZoneDIA@gov.ab.ca

This is the AISH and ADAP inbox for the Edmonton area and northern Alberta. The contact pages in this form have been updated to it.

If that address fails, the old inbox still works as a redirect

northzoneaish@gov.ab.ca

Mail sent to the old address comes back with an automatic reply telling you to use the new one. Your message is not lost, but it may not be counted as received.

If you emailed the old address recently

1. Check your inbox and your junk folder for that automatic reply.
2. Send your documents again to the new address.
3. Keep the automatic reply. It shows the date you first sent your documents, which matters if you are up against a deadline.

One thing to know

Checked 6 October 2026: the government's own contact page at alberta.ca/contact-aish-and-adap still shows the old address for every Edmonton and northern office. That page has not caught up. Use the new address, and keep your automatic reply either way.
