

Your Right to Appeal

A plain-language guide to the AISH appeal process, for people who have received a letter moving them from AISH to ADAP.

If you have received a letter saying you are being moved from AISH to ADAP, you may have the right to appeal that decision. Right now, you are still an AISH recipient. The change does not take effect until July 2, 2026, and the AISH appeal process still exists today. This guide walks you through it, one step at a time. You can do this. Here is exactly how.

Read this first

- This guide is information, not legal advice. The Alberta Disability System Breakdown is an independent advocacy group, not the government.
- Before you appeal, confirm two things by phone (Step 1): that your decision can be appealed, and your exact deadline. Deadlines are strict, so do not guess, ask.

Why acting now matters

- You are still an AISH recipient. The change to ADAP does not take effect until July 2, 2026.
- The AISH appeal process is open right now, but it is closing.
- There is a deadline, usually 30 days from the date you received your decision.
- July 1 is Canada Day and offices are closed, so the last working day to act is June 30.
- The time to act is now, not the end of June.

The steps

Step 1 — Call to confirm (do this first)

Call the Appeals Secretariat: 780-427-2709. Or dial 310-0000 first (toll-free anywhere in Alberta), then the number. Ask them these things, and write down the answers:

- I got a letter moving me from AISH to ADAP. Can I appeal this decision?
- What is my deadline to appeal, and what date does it start from?
- My letter says the transition is automatic, no action is required, and my benefit stays the same until 2027. Is that still a decision I can appeal right now, or do I have to wait for an actual reduction or reassessment?
- Please email or mail me the AISH Notice of Appeal form.

This tells you if you can appeal, exactly how long you have, and gets the form into your hands.

Step 2 — Get the form

The easiest and most reliable way is to ask for it on your Step 1 call. The Appeals Secretariat can email or mail you the AISH Notice of Appeal form (form AAS13358).

If you would rather find it online, go to alberta.ca and type “AISH appeal” into the search box at the top of the page. That takes you to the current page no matter what the web address is. Government links change often, the search box does not. You can fill the form in on a computer, or print it and write it by hand.

Step 3 — If the form will not open

Government fillable forms often will not open on a phone or inside a web browser, including the Facebook app. If that happens:

- On a computer, right-click the link and choose “Save link as” to save the file first, then open it with the free Adobe Acrobat Reader (get.adobe.com/reader).
- On a phone, open the saved file in the free Adobe Acrobat Reader app. If a link opens a blank page in Facebook, tap the three dots and choose “Open in external browser.”
- Easiest of all: ask the Appeals Secretariat to mail or email you a paper copy. You do not have to fight with the website.

Step 4 — Send your documents to AISH first

This one is important. Once you file your appeal, AISH will not look at any new information, and the appeal panel can only consider what AISH already had. So if you have documents that support your case, send them to AISH before you file.

Step 5 — Fill in and send your appeal

On the form, you will be asked for:

- your name and contact information
- a description of the decision you are appealing
- the date you got the decision, and the date you were told you had 30 days to appeal
- the reasons you do not agree

Include a copy of your AISH decision letter. Sign the form. Keep a copy for yourself. Send it to the Appeals Secretariat or an AISH office by:

- Email: alss.appeals@gov.ab.ca
- Fax: 780-422-1088
- Mail or drop-off: 2nd Floor, Agronomy Centre, 6903 116 Street NW, Edmonton, Alberta T6H 5Z2, or any AISH office.

Step 6 — If you are close to, or past, the 30 days

You may still be able to appeal. Fill out Section 3 of the appeal form, or ask the Appeals Secretariat for the Time Extension Request Worksheet, to ask for more time. The Appeals Secretariat will decide whether to give you more time.

If someone is helping you appeal

If a family member, caregiver, or advocate is appealing on your behalf, you will need the Authorization form so they can act for you. Ask the Appeals Secretariat for it on your call, or find it by searching “AISH appeal” on alberta.ca.

What decision am I appealing?

The appeal form asks you to describe the decision you are appealing. Every ADAP transition letter says the same thing, so here is plain wording you can use, just fill in your own letter's date. Only do this once Step 1 has confirmed your decision can be appealed.

Copy and adapt:

"I am appealing the decision in my letter dated _____ from the Assured Income for the Severely Handicapped Program, which states that my AISH file will be transitioned to the Alberta Disability Assistance Program (ADAP) effective July 2026. I did not consent to this transition. I was not individually reassessed. My AISH eligibility was never reversed. I am appealing the decision to move my file from AISH to ADAP."

Finding the forms

The most reliable way to get any of these forms is to call the Appeals Secretariat (780-427-2709) and ask them to email or mail it to you. Online, go to alberta.ca and search "AISH appeal" or "Appeals Secretariat." The forms you may need are:

- AISH Notice of Appeal form (form AAS13358), the main appeal form
- Authorization form, if someone is appealing for you
- Time Extension Request Worksheet, if you are near or past 30 days

Where to get help

Appeals Secretariat offices are open 8:15 am to 4:30 pm, Monday to Friday (closed 12 to 1 pm and on statutory holidays):

- Edmonton: 780-427-2709
- Calgary: 403-297-5636
- Red Deer: 403-340-5531
- Lethbridge: 403-381-5681

Toll-free anywhere in Alberta: dial 310-0000, then the office number.

This guide is not legal advice. For help with your specific situation, a disability-rights lawyer or a legal clinic can advise you, and the Appeals Secretariat can explain the process itself.

The Alberta Disability System Breakdown — Advocate

St. Albert, Alberta | June 2026

albertadisabilitybreakdown@outlook.com