

NATHAN NEUDORF

Minister of Assisted Living & Social Services

Inherits 79,290 disabled Albertans — 41 days until mandatory ADAP transition

2023

BLAMED THE BOARD CHAIR

Publicly attributed the seven-month renewable energy moratorium to AESO’s independent board chair. Internal correspondence obtained by The Narwhal showed the pause was government-directed and AESO’s CEO was “not comfortable” with the plan.

The Narwhal, May 15, 2024

2023–2024

CALLED CRITICS “IDEOLOGY”

Dismissed Pembina Institute reports — each sourced from public records — as “misinformation” that “intentionally misconstrues the facts.” Documented impact: 53 projects cancelled, 8,600 MW lost, $91M/year in lost municipal tax revenue.

The Energy Mix; Canadian Press; Global News

NOV 2025

THE INACTIVE RECALL

Recall petition approved by Elections Alberta November 25, 2025. CBC News and Lethbridge Herald documented the approved campaign had no visible activity. Volunteers reported being spurned. Neudorf said: “I’m not actively involved in my own recall.”

CBC News, Dec 9, 2025; Lethbridge Herald, Dec 13, 2025

MAY 2026

THE ADAP OP-ED

Twelve days before becoming Minister, published Lethbridge Herald op-ed claiming ADAP came from “extensive engagement” with the disability community. Engagement record contradicts. Rebutted line-by-line May 17, 2026. The Minister’s office did not respond.

Lethbridge Herald, May 9, 2026; ADSB correspondence

1994–2011

THE MISSING SEVENTEEN YEARS

BCIT Civil and Structural Engineering diploma earned 1994. First publicly named employer: Ward Bros. Construction Ltd., 2011. Described in every official biography as a “small business owner” — the business is never named in any official source.

UCP biography; Alberta.ca; Lethbridge News Now 2019, 2023

Every item above is sourced from public record.

Free to share • Free to print • Free to post