

Deferring your property taxes: the Seniors Property Tax Deferral Program

Seniors Property Tax Deferral Program | Official form SPTDP0010 (2026/07) | Built 1 October 2026

About this form

This is a fillable working copy built by The Alberta Disability System Breakdown. It captures everything the official Seniors Property Tax Deferral loan application and agreement (SPTDP0010, July 2026) asks, and it opens and fills on any phone, tablet or computer. It is NOT an official Government of Alberta form.

The official version: form SPTDP0010 (2026/07), with its information guide, from alberta.ca/seniors-property-tax-deferral-program, or by calling the Alberta Supports Contact Centre at 1-877-644-9992.

This is not legal advice. Read the guide pages first, then fill in the form pages.

What this program is

Instead of paying your property taxes each year, the government pays them to your town or city for you, as a low-interest loan against your home. You do not make monthly payments. The loan, with interest, is paid back when you sell the home, stop being an owner, or stop living there as your main home. You can also pay some or all of it back early, at any time, without a penalty.

To secure the loan, the government registers a caveat on your land title. A caveat is a notice on the title saying the government has a claim against the property. It is removed once the loan is paid off.

Who can apply

- You are 65 or older. If you are a couple, only one of you needs to be 65.
- You are a registered owner of the home at a Land Titles Office, as a regular owner (fee simple) or a leaseholder.
- You are a Canadian citizen or permanent resident, and you live in Alberta. The application asks whether you have lived in Alberta for the past three months.
- The home is your main home. Summer homes, rentals and commercial properties do not count. Mobile and manufactured homes on land you own can apply.
- The home has home insurance at full replacement value.
- You have at least 25% equity in the home (see the calculator below).

Two things the program page does not tell you

"No income test" is not the whole story. The regulation says you must give "evidence satisfactory to the Minister" that you will be able to repay the loan. (Seniors Property Tax Deferral Regulation, AR 85/2013, s.6(4)(d).)

When the loan comes due, it is due right away. If the home stops being your main home, the regulation says the loan is "due and payable without further notice or demand." (AR 85/2013, s.8.)

Things on your title that must be cleared first

These must be removed from your land title before you can get a loan: a certificate of lis pendens (pending court action), a reverse mortgage, maintenance enforcement, bankruptcy, foreclosure, or a consumer proposal.

Check your equity

Use your property tax assessment from your town or city. "Charges" means everything registered against your title that has a dollar value: your mortgage, your line of credit limit (not just what you owe), and anything else.

To qualify, Line B must be less than Line A.

Your three choices

- Current year only: defer this year's full taxes. You reapply next year if you want to do it again.
- Current year plus more years, up to 10 in total: you don't have to reapply each year, the program pays your town or city automatically once it gets the bill, and you avoid late penalties. Your eligibility is still checked every year.
- Part of this year's taxes: defer only an amount you choose.

Interest

The interest rate changes twice a year, on 1 April and 1 October. It is simple interest, charged only on what was borrowed, not on interest. Interest starts on the day the program pays your town or city. You get a statement in April and October. Any payments you make go to interest first. For the current rate, see alberta.ca/seniors-property-tax-deferral-program or call 1-877-644-9992.

If you have a spouse or partner

When an owner with a loan dies, the loan usually comes due. It can carry on for a surviving spouse or partner who is 55 or older, is a registered owner, lived in the home before the death, and keeps living there.

How to fill it out

- Personal information: you, and your spouse or partner if you have one: Personal Health Number, date of birth, phone and full name.
- Two addresses: where you get mail, and the address of the home the taxes are for. They may be the same.
- Property tax information: copy the tax roll number, municipality, legal land description and assessed value from your property tax bill. Tick whether your taxes are behind (in arrears). Arrears and penalties can be included in the loan.
- Loan choice: tick one of the three choices. For more years, write how many. For part of the year, write the dollar amount.
- Eligibility checklist: answer all five questions yes or no.

- Signatures: you, your spouse or partner, and every registered owner must sign the agreement, by hand. The form says digital or electronic signatures are not accepted. If a power of attorney or trustee signs for an owner, they print the owner's full name and their own name, phone number and signature.

When to send it

The program says a complete application must arrive at least 30 days before your property tax due date, or you may face late penalties. If your taxes are due 30 June, it should arrive by 31 May. Penalties can be added to the loan, or you can pay them yourself.

What to send, and where

Send only the two application pages (the working copy that follows, printed and signed) and a copy of your property tax bill for the year you are applying for. Keep the guide pages.

- Online: seniors.alberta.ca/submit-documents
- Fax: 780-644-1810
- Mail: Seniors Property Tax Deferral Program, PO Box 1200 STN Main, Edmonton, Alberta T5J 2M4

What happens after

The program reviews your application, may call you for more information, and tells you in writing whether you qualify. If you are approved, the caveat is registered on your title, the program pays your taxes to your town or city, and you get statements every April and October.

If you are turned down

The program guide says you can ask for a review by writing to the program's Executive Director, explaining why. Neither the Seniors' Property Tax Deferral Act nor its regulation sets up a review or an appeal, so this review is the program's own practice, with no deadline written into law. The guide also says the government can deny an application "for any reason at its sole discretion."

The regulation that runs this program, AR 85/2013, is set to expire on 31 March 2028 unless it is renewed.
