

Appeal vs. Reassessment

TWO DIFFERENT DOORS. YOU ARE ALLOWED TO USE BOTH. • JUNE 2026

Once the new law takes effect, being moved from AISH to ADAP cannot be appealed — but that bar does not start until July 2, and two doors are open right now. Here is what each one is for.

APPEAL

WHAT IT IS

Formally object to a director's decision (AISH Act s.10).

WHAT IT DOES

Puts your objection on the record, in writing, with a date.

WHERE IT GOES

Appeals Secretariat — 780-427-2709 (toll-free 310-0000); alss.appeals@gov.ab.ca; fax 780-422-1088.

WHEN

In writing, within 30 days of notice of the decision and your right to appeal; the Minister may extend. The right is live until July 2 — file before the end of June.

THE CATCH

An appeal can only look at what is already in your file. New evidence does not go here.

REASSESSMENT

WHAT IT IS

Ask to be assessed for AISH on medical grounds.

WHAT IT DOES

The real route back onto AISH — the path that can change your amount.

WHERE IT GOES

Alberta Supports Contact Centre 1-877-644-9992 (the AISH and assessment side, not the appeals line).

WHEN

Through the single combined AISH/ADAP application. Not time-limited — available whenever you choose; the government covers one medical assessment.

THE CATCH

This is where your new doctor's letter belongs — it needs to speak to permanence.

DO BOTH. They are separate doors and they do not replace each other.

Why appeal at all, if the move itself can't be appealed? Because filing in the window forces them to put their refusal in writing, with a date, and preserves any right you still have before the door closes. A “no” costs you almost nothing. Keep a right, or make them prove they took it.

You may not need either one. If you have a severe or profound developmental disability or are PDD-eligible, have a palliative or terminal condition, live in continuing care, or are 60 or older, you stay on AISH automatically and should not be moved at all. Got an ADAP letter anyway? Flag it — it may be an error worth challenging.
