

CONSENT TO RELEASE INFORMATION

FSCD or PDD · Accessible fillable version · The Alberta Disability System Breakdown · September 2026

THIS IS YOURS, AND YOU SET THE LIMITS

A consent is only as wide as you write it. You say who can share, who can receive, exactly what, and for how long. A consent with no limits and no end date is a blank cheque. You can change it or cancel it in writing whenever you want.

WHAT THIS IS

A signed note letting one person or office share information with another. You are giving the permission, so you decide how far it goes.

WHAT THIS IS NOT

Not a government form. A consent is your own document, so a clear written one does the job. The government file, AAS13391, will not open on a phone.

WHAT YOU WILL NEED BEFORE YOU START

Get these together first. It is easier than stopping halfway.

- The full name of the person or office who will be sharing.
- The full name of the person or office who will be receiving.
- A clear idea of exactly what you are happy to be shared.
- An end date. Pick one before you start, even if it is a year away.

Which program is this about?

Tick one.

STEP 2 — WHO, AND WHAT

Who is the information about?

This may be you, or your child, or an adult you are guardian for.

Who are you?

For example: parent, guardian, agent under a personal directive.

File number

Leave blank if you do not have one.

Who may share it?

Name them. Not just “the program” — the office or the person.

Who may receive it?

Name them the same way.

STEP 3 — EXACTLY WHAT, AND FOR HOW LONG

What may be shared?

Be specific. "All information" is much wider than most people mean. Name the documents, the dates, or the subject.

What may NOT be shared?

Optional, and worth using. Anything you write here is left out of the consent.

Why?

One line is enough. For example: so the school can plan supports.

When does this end?

Put a date in. If you leave it open-ended, it stays open.

Your signature

Typing your name is enough.

Today's date

Year, month, day.

BEFORE YOU SIGN

- Keep a copy. You cannot hold someone to limits you cannot show them.
- You can cancel this in writing at any time. Cancelling stops future sharing. It does not undo sharing that has already happened.
- If you are handed a wider consent than you want, you can cross parts out, put your initials next to the changes, and hand it back. A consent can be negotiated.
- If someone says a service depends on signing an open-ended consent, ask them in writing which rule says so.
