

YOUR CHILD'S DAILY ROUTINE

Accessible fillable version · The Alberta Disability System Breakdown · September 2026

THIS IS THE FORM ALMOST NOBODY USES

The FSCD rules list fifteen things a decision maker MUST think about. Most of them are about your household, not your child's diagnosis. Things like the effect on you, what your other children go without, who else can help, and how far you travel. This is how those things get in front of them, in your words.

WHAT THIS IS

A record of an ordinary week. Every section says which of the fifteen things it feeds, so what you write lands against a rule they have to follow.

WHAT THIS IS NOT

It is NOT an official Government of Alberta form. The government's own version, FSCD13335, is on the Government of Alberta forms site (cfr.forms.gov.ab.ca), and it will not open on a phone.

HOW TO FILL IT IN

- Fill it across a normal week, not in one sitting. Little bits are fine.
- Write ordinary weeks, not only the worst one. A normal week is harder to argue with.
- If a section has no answer because the help does not exist, write that. An absence is evidence too.
- Nobody is marking your spelling.

WHAT YOU WILL NEED

A week. That is all. No paperwork, no file numbers. Your phone or a pen, wherever you will have it to hand at 3am.

BEFORE YOU START

Your child's name

Up to 80 characters.

Age

Up to 10 characters.

Which week is this?

For example: 6 to 12 October.

Up to 40 characters.

YOUR WEEK

OVERNIGHT

How your nights go, and how much sleep you get.

Feeds: the well-being of the guardians and others in the home, and the effect of the disability on the family.

Up to 1,800 characters.

MORNINGS

Getting up and getting out.

Feeds: what a parent normally does raising a child, and what is age-appropriate for your child.

Up to 1,800 characters.

ANYTHING THAT TAKES TWO PEOPLE

The things one person cannot do alone.

Feeds: what family members are able to do, and how severe the disability is.

Up to 1,800 characters.

AFTERNOONS AND EVENINGS

Including what gets cancelled, and what you stopped trying.

Feeds: the effect on the family, and whether your child and family take part in things in the community.

Up to 1,800 characters.

WHAT YOUR OTHER CHILDREN TAKE ON

What your other children do, or go without.

Feeds: the needs of your child's brothers and sisters. This is a listed factor on its own. Say it plainly.

Up to 1,800 characters.

WHO ELSE CAN HELP, AND WHO CANNOT

Say so if the answer is nobody.
Feeds: whether anyone other than the guardians is available to help.

Up to 1,800 characters.

TRAVEL, AND WHAT YOUR AREA DOES NOT HAVE

What you drive to, and what simply is not near you.
Feeds: what programs and services are available where you live, and where your community is.

Up to 1,800 characters.

SCHOOL BREAKS AND HOLIDAYS

Summer, teacher days, Christmas, spring break.
Feeds: what your family needs during school breaks and holidays. A separate listed factor. Do not fold it into the rest.

Up to 1,800 characters.

ANYTHING ELSE

Including anything cultural or religious that matters to how you care for your child.

Feeds: your cultural values and beliefs, and any other relevant matter, which is itself a listed factor.

Up to 1,800 characters.

FINISHING UP

Your name

Up to 80 characters.

Today's date

Year, month, day.

Up to 20 characters.

WHAT TO DO WITH IT

- Give a copy to your caseworker with your assessment or your plan, and keep one.
- If you are appealing, attach it. The fifteen things bind the appeal committee just as they bind the caseworker. The rule says the director AND an appeal committee must consider them.
- Update it when things change. A record over time is stronger than one snapshot.

THE FIFTEEN THINGS, IN SHORT

So you can see what you are writing against. The rule is section 2 of the FSCD Regulation.

- what a parent normally does raising a child
- the effect the disability has on the family
- what family members are able to do
- the well-being of the guardians and others in the home
- how severe the disability is
- your child's stage of development for their age

- who is in your family
- the needs of brothers and sisters
- your cultural values and beliefs
- school breaks and holidays
- taking part in community programs
- whether anyone other than the guardians can help
- what services are available where you live
- where your community is
- anything else that is relevant

Where this comes from: the FSCD Regulation, AR 140/2004, section 2. Read 28 September 2026. Not legal advice.
